I make a binding commitment to the following focus areas:

Focus Area 1: .....

Focus Area 2: .....

By registering for modules that are not part of the focus areas, I also determine my mandatory elective modules.

The following is defined in the examination regulations:

A change of one focus area can be applied once during the entire study program, provided that no more than two modules of the focus area have already been completed. Successfully completed modules from the old focus area will then be counted as mandatory elective modules, provided that the number of mandatory elective modules already selected allows this.

In the case of failed mandatory elective module examinations, students can change the mandatory elective module once during the entire study program after the first, second or final failure.
